

I wanted to play only for CSK's yellow jersey: Chahar

New Delhi, Feb 15: Pacer Deepak Chahar “actually wanted” Chennai Super Kings to stop bidding for him after it had huddled past Rs. 13 crore during the IPL auction as he was afraid that it may come in the way of building a strong team.

Bought back by his old franchise for a staggering Rs 14 crore, making him the most expensive Indian bowler at an IPL auction, Chahar said he couldn't imagine playing for any team apart from CSK.

“I wanted to play for CSK because I haven't imagined myself playing in other colour than yellow,” Chahar told Star Sports.

“At one point, I thought it (the bid price) was too much. As a CSK player, I also want to build a good team. So after they spent 13 crore, I actually wanted the bidding to stop so I can go to CSK quickly and then we can buy some other players (with the money saved),” he added.

A part of the Indian white-ball team currently, Chahar said in 2018, he was told by franchise owner N. Srinivasan that “you will play in yellow always”. Since then, Chahar said, he had never brought up the topic of retention with the team management or its talisman Mahendra Singh Dhoni.

“I've never spoken about all this to Mahi bhai (captain MS Dhoni) or CSK management,” Chahar said.

“In 2018, I had met Srinivasan sir, and he has said, ‘you will play in yellow always’. So I took his word that day and since then I have never spoken about retention. I knew CSK would bid (for me).” As the two-day mega auction progressed, he said the Indian players engaged in the ongoing limited overs series against the West Indies kept themselves updated on news from Bengaluru, where they were going under the hammer.

“We (India's T20I

squad) were travelling from Ahmedabad to Kolkata, and the whole team was watching the auction. Everyone was saying kitna ho gaya (what's the bid price?) and all that.” The 29-year-old Chahar will represent the Super Kings for a fifth season in-a-row, having been bought by the franchise before IPL 2018 for Rs. 80 lakh.

Chahar's only regret now is that he could never play alongside his cousin Rahul Chahar. They did share the dressing room at erstwhile Rising Pune Supergiant, but never played together.

Kohli hones skill at extended net session ahead of T20Is

Kolkata, Feb 15: Battling a prolonged lean patch, former India captain Virat Kohli batted at the nets and also took throw-downs during India's first practice session ahead of Twenty20 series against the West Indies here.

Kohli was first to enter the nets to take throwdowns from the Indian support staff as he batted from both the ends before going for the drill.

Later he had a lengthy net session, spanning more than 45 minutes.

India skipper Rohit Sharma along with coach Rahul Dravid were also seen in a long discussion with curator Sujan Mukherjee.

In the white-ball format, the Indian ace last scored a century against the West Indies in August 2019, in Port of Spain ODI and since then, he has had 10 50-plus scores but failed to convert them into a ton.

Across formats, he's yet to score an International century in more than two years and his last century came against Bangladesh in India's first pink ball Day/Night

Test at Eden Gardens here in November 2019.

There will not be any spectators in India's opening T20I against the West Indies on Wednesday but Cricket Association of Bengal is “hopeful” that the Board will reconsider its decision for the second and third T20Is.

“The Cricket Association of Bengal on Monday again requested the BCCI to allow spectators for remaining matches,” CAB president Avishek Dalmiya said in a statement.

“The CAB will intimate all stake holders once it receives feedback from the Board.” For the first match, there would be only 2,000-odd match representatives and sponsors.

“The BCCI has allowed only upper tier and hospitality boxes for sponsors and representatives of the match,” he added.

Earlier, Dalmiya hoped to conduct the matches with spectators after the State Government allowed 75 per cent capacity.

Putty, Paint and Professional Pretense..!

It was a narrow bridge one climbed from once a lazy station, onto the road above.

Elphinstone Road station in Mumbai was hardly used previously, except by mill workers of old, going to work or returning to their homes. And then in the last twenty years the whole area changed: The old mills were demolished, towers, housing thousands of offices appeared and the area turned from a sleepy location to a business hub, but the thin narrow bridge remained.

Till one day over two score commuters were killed in a stampede on that inadequate bridge!

Mumbai and the rest of Maharashtra and maybe some parts of India mourned that day and then went back to talking of, ah well, the Bullet Train.

We are adept at professional pretense. I have seen buildings with near collapsing water tanks and columns and beams, going in for a lovely painting job, quite happy they have hidden their disastrous blemishes under clever make up.

“What a beautiful building!” say visitors as they come to visit.

“Yes,” we say proudly as we look away from cracks and faults that have been expertly covered with putty and paint, hiding parts that our caving in, propped up by nothing more than willpower. The visitor looks at putty and paint, smiles and nods. “A beautiful building indeed!”

I remember a few years ago, going with members of an NGO and looking at hordes of leprosy patients in the suburbs. “No funds to treat them,” the NGO chairman whispered, “Because we have officially told the world we've eradicated leprosy!”

Putty and paint, is what we love using, while pretending we have professionally handled something!

It's like putting heavy make up on a sick person's face. “Look!” we say, “You don't look sick!” And the person who is sick, cries, “I'm dying!”

“But look at yourself!” we tell the sick person, “Just look in the mirror, you look hale and hearty enough to party!”

And the sick person, who knows that inside a cancer grows, looks at his professionally made up face and knows it's over!

We have become adept at covering the rot inside. At ignoring the groans and moans behind the makeup! We are immune to the almost daily news of fires in high-rises, or of old buildings collapsing. Immune to fictitious figures, falsifying facts. And instead laughing and chuckling, we showcase and show off made up statistics, bullet trains, statues and proposed islands with even 'taller than Liberty' statues in the sea. We point out how we've changed the name of the station that saw the death of so many, from Elphinstone Road Station to Prabhadevi Station; new board, new name, bright red lipstick and fancy make up, but did it save the lives of those crushed in that ancient staircase that day?

Putty, paint, and professional pretense, on a dilapidated staircase called India..!
